

ARKANSAS TROUT

Winding through the hardwood forests and bluffs that make the Ozarks one of the most beautiful destinations in the Midwest. We headed up the worn dirt road and watched the trees open up to our final destination, the White River Inn. The lodge is situated three hundred feet above the White river which offered our CLUB members some incredible views of the valley below. Whether sipping our coffee as we watched the sun come up or enjoying a cold drink after the days fishing excursion the scenery that surrounded the lodge didn't disappoint.

The fishing, despite record low water levels this year, produced many rainbow trout and the White river's signature fish, the brown trout - with a handful going over twenty inches. Some of our guests were lucky enough to hook into a few of the other species that dwell in the cool water which included tiger trout, cutbow and cutthroat trout. Due to weather and water levels the first group had a lot of success in number of fish caught. While the second group were able to hook into some quality sized trout, but not the same numbers the first group experienced. Listening to our CLUB members at the end of the day the White river had left its impression on them and it was all smiles.

Moose and Tina didn't let anyone leave the table hungry. Prior to heading out to fish you are treated to a traditional breakfast and in the evening you enjoy a delicious home cooked meal. This was immediately followed by dessert where you were introduced to Tina's famous brownies and blue bell ice cream.

The White River Inn was a phenomenal experience for all our CLUB members, from the warm and welcoming lodge decorated in mounts and replicas from all over the world, to having your chance at a trophy brown trout, you will leave refreshed and eager to come back for another stay.
